Horseshoe Island: In 1890 the Shaw Lumber company held a 4th of July picnic for its 800 employees and families. Lunch included 3 barrels of dough nuts [sic], 2 bushels of ginger snaps, as well as usual fair. In 1903 thousands gathered to watch a regatta on Half Moon Lake, wooden "tub-race," storming of the Spanish block house, and a log rolling contest.

(Horseshoe Island became Carson Park when the land was donated to the city in 1914.)

What point is in front of the Eau Claire Press Co?

Electric Park was a primary site for 4th of July celebrations for many years. It was built by the Chippewa Valley Electric Railway company in 1895 at one of its trolley stops between Eau Claire and Chippewa Falls. In its heyday, it offered a domed shelter, dance hall, outdoor movie screen, amusement rides, and paddle-wheel boats. In 1919, it was reported that crowds were so dense – estimated to be 5000 -- that it was considered unsafe to set off fireworks.
